Don’t Trust Anyone

Author: Sidra Tul Muntaha
Don’t trust anyone

Once open a time, there was a poor man Sham. He was searching for job because he had no money to buy any food. He looked everywhere, but there was no work fount. He went out of the home and start searching for a work. After a while, he reached to a factory. He saw a fat man nearby, so Sham got chance to talk to him about his situation.

He went up to the man and said “hi I am looking a job.”

The fat man turned and saws his face. He got very happy, because he was looking for a strong man that could do this hard work. So the fat man said. “I have a job for you but it is really hard. Sham said “I can do any kind of work at least I can eat something and have proper living.

Some day after, he starts working. He gets his first salary, and he was really happy for that, but unfortunately, he could not get any salary from his boss, so he realised that his boss is fraud.

Still he was working and helping everyone. There one day, he tells to his boss,

“It is been 6 months that I haven’t got my salary.

The fat laughs and say.” You are a servant here and do as you told.”

Sham become sad, and sad to himself, do not depend on someone too much, even your shadow leaves you when you are in difficulty and hardship.
Sham was a poor man who was looking for work. First, he couldn't find anywhere. One day he tried once more to find a job and finally got one in a factory. Unfortunately, the boss of the factory was very rude but Sham continued to work because he needed money for food. At last Sham got a lesson out of this job that nobody helps you when you need it so don't trust anyone.